SCARECROWS

mr. Woodraff's Suppositition

Parmers complain that of late years row has become entirely use Oshkosh frock coat would corn-field from crows of ave-telligence, but it is no longer con-corn-field from crows of ave a intelligence, but it is no longer criticious. The crows have become familiar with the appearance of the tramps who infest all parts of the country and it is well understood in crow circles that the tramp never carries a gun, and is therefore larmless. The scarecrow so closely resembles the tramp that crowsfall to discriminate between them, and magining that the scarecrow is merely a contemptible tramp, they steal cornuder the very shadow of its hat. It was always a mistake to suppose that crows could be for any length of time frightened by scarecrows. The scarecrow was an imitation man, and it ought to have been foressen that the crows would some dayfind that a scarecrow incapable of firing a gun could do no harm. The farmers should have appealed to that fear of the supernatural which is inherent in all animals. Could they have employed a ghost to protect their corn-fields, not a single grain of corn would have been stolen. The success of Mr. Woodruff's efforts to rid his house of rats by means of a ghostiv cat is alone sufficient to prove that if we really want to frighten animals we must appeal to their lear of the supernatural.

It is well known that rats and mice at its well known that rats and mice can not be successfully resisted with traps. Young rats may ocasionally wander into a trap, but every experienced rat knows a trap her every experienced rat knows a trap her every experienced rat knows a trap her her sees it and simply laughs at it. In every house there are sure to be two or three leading and influential rats who are perfectly familiar with traps, and who warn their younger associates to beware of them. The old-fashioned spring trap is decidedly popular among rats, for the reason that they can readily spring it and afterward carry off the cheese at their release. As for these ingenious traps designed to catch mice alive, they are entirely worthless. A rat who sees a small box with a seductive piece of cheese displayed behind the iron bars of see attractive-locking compartment knows perfectly well that it is a trap, and he will refuse to enter the door of the box even when it is decorated with the legend in large plain letters: "Rats will pease enter and turn to the left. The best of free cheese always on had.

Mr. Woodruff having spent much money on traps, and having found that poison was in vain and real cats were axi, decided to try the experiment of rightening rats by convincing them that the house was haunted. He prepared a harge stuffed cat with green glass ever and a ferocious and sarcastic smile, and placed in her interior an electric light. There was a large closet in his bedroom which contained half a dozen rat holes from which rats came forth every night on foraging expeditions. In the middle of this closet he placed the cat and connected her internal tight with wirestyming to a battery near his beside. Having thus prepared his feline ghost for the rats. As soon as the house was quiet the rats came out, and when, independent of the ghostly cat, with her giowing eyes and shining teeth, and there was the rash of many feet as the frightened satis did to their holes. Mr. Woodruff, dunckling over the success of his experiment, arose and examined the clo ieft to stand guard over the rat holes bil davlight.

What is still more remarkable, the rats left the house without an hour's delay. There had previously been, at a low estimate, fully 7,000 rats in that nouse, not to speak of swarms of subschiary mice. From the hour when the stuffed eat's electric light began to glow not a rat or a mouse has been seen in Mr. Woodruff's house. The animals that had laughed at traps, mocked at read cats and grown fat on poison, were frightened off the premises by a single apparition of an apparently supernatural cat, and their stories have given the house such an uneanny reputation that it is safe to prophesy that rats and mice will avoid it for vears to come.

The tarmers should take a hint from Mr. Woodruff's success. If they could invent a scarcerow representing a tramp at work the cows would be vanquished. They would, of course, assume the working tramp to be a supernatural being, and the terror with which the sight would sill them would rid the whole region of crows for at least during the present season.—N. Y. Times.

past rew years "moning in the courty, an allowance must be made for reckless expenditure a by the government, but if the latter did not see a useless and unnecessary expenditure of the proble money was being made, it was the duty of members of the House and friends of the government for the proble money as the money as the first out. All took, for insance, there was close on to $25,000 on translating. Nearly one half this is took a member in the House, Government or Oppesition, possessed of sufficient courage to move for an amendment to the constitution, to abbits it. This expenditure does or opposition, possessed to move for an amendment to the consti-tution, to abolish it. This expenditure does no eartily good to the country, except threw a little money into Mr. Lalliviere's pocket, and employ a few French printers in St. Bon-iface, while if distributed it would give about $50 each to our country schools.

Go to the Executive Council again, and you find threefor more clerks to attend the meetings of the Cabinet, as if one asseciated with some other office, the Secretary of the Lieut-Governor, for instance, could not discharge all the duties, at two or three hun-dred dellars a year added to hir salary. In the Treasury effice there are in addition to the Ireasury effice there are in addition to the Deputy, an accountant, and two or three other clerks when one good man with a capyist could perform all the duties of the calles. Mr. Burrows, too, has to have a assessgrapher to enable him the better to at-tend to "noxieus" weeds, and buy and sell nowspapers. The Provincial Police, toe, cost the country annually $4,498, and until a few months since, no body aver any them east the country annually $6,490, and until a few months since, no body ever saw them entaide of Winnipeg. Government House, too, must have a gardener and an assistant gardener, to cultivate prairie flowers in this pardener, to caltivate prairie Rowers in this prairie sountry of starving municipalities. The government is, of course, mainly responsible for this, but they are not alone an-anable to the people for this recklessness—the people's representatives cannot shift their share of the liability. There are a few private members in the Housewho do their duty with that these many charge of them again. well, but there many others of them again who make up in ignorance what they lack in independence, and think it is their chieffed to vote with their party leaders, regardies altogether of the consequences. We cannot, of course, expect in a young cauntry like this, to see every member an educated parliamentarian; but they should be presents of the Dominion, and to vote with and against party, as the expensitures, at least, can be improved upon. We say it, that in the coming elections no apprant sheald receive a nomination at the hands of any party who is not intelligent enough for the responsibility, and who does not run pledged to do his best to reduce the Departmental extravagancies, and give the saving to the schools, the grain extraction of the province. Some of the leading Grits of the province would ask the public to believe that Mr. TIMELY HINTS.

There is no disputing the fact that the way things are managed by the government at Winnings, must be very unsatisfactory to the country, and it affords good graind for the disastanchion aboard in the country; but with circumstances as they are, it is a very difficult catter to say whether it is the Hontactor or the government that is to blame. We are fully aware, that as things were during the government that is to blame. The recent cold snap is explained. Last Monday was Sir John Macdonald's birth-day—a mighty cold day for Canada. The foregoing appeared in the Globe of the 15th, as one of its shoicest witicisms. It has often been the wish of many of the Grit prints, that Sir John's days were at a close, and the control of the grit has cold to be considered by the prints of the control of the grit has cold to be considered by the control of the grit has cold to the grit has control of th and the Globs repeats the wish above. His birth day may be a cold day for Canada, but it was a colder day for the Grit party, the day it was a colour—he has kept the "ance guid" in the cold the greater part of his parliamentary career, and the regret is that he is yet hearty enough to keep them there for many a day to come, and he'll do it.

Vaccination. The anti-vaccinators at Nel-on, near Burnley, England, have just completed a house-to-house canvass of the rate-payers, who were asked to answer, in writing the two questions: "Are you in favor of vaccination?" and "Are you opposed to compulsory vaccination?"—papers being left to be filed and subsequently called for. About 2,200 papers were distributed, of which about 2,000 were returned. Of these 360 were returned lank or otherwise informal, 1.534 rate-payers stated that they were opposed to compulsory vaccination, while only 81 declared for it. Of the 1.534 opposed to compulsory vaccination, while only 81 declared for it. Of the 1.534 opposed to compulsory vaccination, also opposed to vaccination, 216 did not answer the first question, and 98 are in favor of vaccination, 34 answered the first question in the affirmative, but did not answer the second: 31 rate-payers certified to cases of death in their families from vaccination, and 36 to cases of injury.—London News. W Va., Jan. 22. — A visit to day to the mine wherein 39 men were imprisoned by vesterday, sexploion, all being regarded dead, show men still at work repairing the shattered timbers of the shaft and others were in the bucket going down the black hele into the blacker deep below. Returning they brought no tidings for the anxious crowd, but soon the ramor spre d that a search party had found at the bottom of the shaft Daniel Miller, the cager and his soon, 15 years old, a driver named Timmens, trapper and young Black, a driver. One of he party was quoted as saying they found Kmneys mule blown 60 feet out of the stables with his halter on. The searchers themselves would aw nothing. It was thought better to keep the dreadful secrets the lamps revealed below until a wider search brought more definite knowledge. There could be no certainty as to the identity of the biackeard remains. The work in the mine will be sont timed through the night by relief parties composed in part of men who have fathers below. At this hour the orowed still sands about discussing the chances of life and death; crowds of people from along the railroad and farmers for mines back in the country eager to do something, and nothing for them to do. The origin of the disester is variously determined by experts. The generally accepted theory which is that of the companys representative is that Nick Williams, who was cutting a dirch through a brattis at the extreme and of the working to let water of, knocked down a door to give him a better chance at this work. The door played an important part in the system of ventilation which was thus deranged. The foul gas collected in great volume and was fired by a miners, lamp. One of the last men to come ont of the mine before the explosion ways he heard N ck Williams say he was going to knock the door down, and as he came he heard a heavy pounding, as though the door was being battered down. The stem inspector of mineo, on his recent visit here, recommended the company to put in a flue, but this had
